Tulsa recreation equipment leader named ORPS board officer

Tulsa, Okla. – The Oklahoma Recreation & Parks Society (ORPS) today announced the election of Brandon Riggs to the position of Citizen Board Vice-President for 2010-2011. Riggs, who is president of Tulsa-based Terra Pad Recreation Solutions, will be sworn into this position and begin his duties at the 2010 ORPS Conference Nov. 17-19 in Norman.

“Brandon’s passion for the recreation profession and the public is admirable,” said Kent Dunlap, CPRP, President of ORPS. “His investment of time, talent and energy in an effort to improve the parks and recreation field in our state is greatly appreciated.”

ORPS was founded in 1956 and is affiliated with the National Recreation & Park Association as a professional organization for any agency or person involved in providing recreation and parks services. ORPS membership is representative of statewide communities, higher education, regional and commercial members from Oklahoma, Texas, Arkansas, Kansas, Tennessee, Iowa, North Carolina, Georgia and Canada. Committed to furthering the professional development of its membership, ORPS promotes networking, education, communication and opportunities for service among professionals in the field. ORPS is a non-profit society interested in delivering quality leisure services to every community in Oklahoma.

Tulsa-based Terra Pad Recreation Solutions, a leader in the recreation industry, is focused on the planning, design, preconstruction, sales and installation of developmentally appropriate play equipment, aquatic sprayparks and architectural fountains, recreation amenities, shade structures and solar systems.
